WATERSHEDDINGS SURVEY

AFTER the bitter disappointment of our first-round State Express Challenge Cup defeat by Workington, followed by our First Division reverse at Carlisle four days later, we were delighted to get back to something like our old form at Hull KR last Sunday.

Our supporters were naturally disappointed at losing again in the cup, but there was a tremendous transformation at Craven Park last Sunday when Mick Morgan made his debut and made a massive contribution to the swing in fortunes.

Throughout our troubled spell, coach Frank Myler insisted there was no cause to panic — and he was certainly proved right judging by the way the whole side responded to the challenge at Hull KR.

Though we lost 11-6, there was only one try scored in the entire match — and we contend it followed a forward pass, a view that even the Hull KR people accepted afterwards.

For most of the first half we were well on top and played by far the better football with Mick Morgan showing absolutely outstanding form.

The try was a blow to us and then, in the second half, we struggled for possession from the scrums, otherwise we would possibly have won and certainly have drawn.

The whole side did well and proved that, if that sort of form and commitment can be maintained, there should be no fears about our being unable to retain our First Division status this season.

We still need some more points, of course, but we have four games at home out of seven — against Leigh, Castleford, Halifax and Barrow. There are three away games at Widnes, Wigan and Leigh.

You will have read in the Press about the saga of the rearranged Hull KR match. We arranged it for last Sunday in the belief that Halifax were to come here to play their outstanding match on Sunday, March 20.

Halifax then withdrew, but when we tried to go back to the original fixture list the League pointed out that we would have to justify our reasons to the executive committee.

We decided to play the match, but also to press the executive to give us the same sort of backing as that they gave to Hull KR in our bid to fix the Halifax game here on March 20th.

Our case was due to be heard by the executive last Wednesday.

Congratulations go out to our forwards Terry Flanagan and Andy Goodway, who have retained their places in the Great Britain side to meet France at Hull this afternoon.

On the strength of their outstanding displays for the under-24 team in France in mid-January, Terry and Andy were picked for their first full Tests in Cracassonne recently and by all accounts both had very good games.

We were informed by reliable sources afterwards that both figured among Britain's top five performers, so there are hopes they will repeat their form for Britain on Humberside today and thus push themselves well into the running for places for the Aussie tour next year.

Today's game is an important one for both clubs. Leigh have now nudged us out of eighth place. We are currently in ninth position and the match is a vital one, not merely because both clubs need the points to breath easier over the relegation issue but also because they still retain hopes of finishing in the top eight and earning a place in the Premiership play-off.

HISTORICAL NOTES ON THE LEIGH CLUB

by Tom Webb

The Leigh club is believed to have been formed in 1877 and its origin is due to Mr. Fred Ulph, a surveyor. A ground was secured at Buck's Farm, Pennington but a move was made about a couple of years later to a ground behind the Three Crowns in the Bedford part of the town.

A new team was formed at the Albion Engineering Works and the opposition almost caused the Leigh club to founder when many of the old players joined the new club.

However amalgamation with the Firs Lane, Bedford and Albion clubs saved and strengthened the club. From then on the club never looked back and gradually built up an improved fixture list which created more interest and enthusiasm in the town.

Four of the earliest members of the club were John Tunnicliffe, C. Bailey, Captain Fowler and W. Wright who was headmaster of the Leigh Church School.

In or around 1887 Tom Coop of Tottington was secured and he was a legend in Lancashire. He represented England against Scotland under Rugby Union rules in 1892 while a member of the Leigh club. In 1890-91 he played for Lancashire in all its ten Rugby Union county matches at full back. Alongside him were Jim Valentine of Swinton, Dai Gwynne and Billy McCutcheon of Oldham, with Valentine officiating as captain.

In 1893 the club fell foul of the professional laws of the Rugby Football Union for its part in persuading players to join the club. Wilding from Cardiff Harlequins and Da Fitzgerald who later joined Batley were among the players involved and Leigh Football Club was suspended in 1894-95 when Wigan and Salford were also suspended. Oldham were also "tried" but found "not guilty".

The upshot was that Leigh were included in the founder members of the Northern Union when 22 leading clubs in the north broke away from the Rugby Union. That was in 1895 when the Leigh club had been using the Mather Lane ground for some half dozen years.

One great figure in the Leigh ranks was Jack Hurst. He guested for Oldham in 1881 against the touring Maori side from New Zealand although one account says he signed for the Oldham club before that match.

In the early days of the Northern Union the club played in the Lancashire Senior Competition and then in the first division of the Northern Rugby Football League during the three seasons that two divisions existed. In 1905-06 Leigh astounded the Rugby world by topping the Northern League and so becoming the champions. In that one year there was no top-four play-off. That scheme was adopted in the following season.

In 1898-99 Oldham defeated Leigh in the semi-final of the Northern Union (now Rugby League) Challenge Cup. Leigh reached the semi-final again in 1908 but went down to Hull by 7-0.

In 1921 Leigh reached the cup final. The team that did duty that day was T. Clarkson, Hurst, Heaton, E. Thomas, C. Braund, Mooney, Parkinson, Cartwright, Winstanley, Darwell, Prosser, Boardman and Coffey. Ten of the side were born in Leigh-Wigan are Tommy Clarkson at full back was a sterling player and Joe Darwell and Walter Mooney were prime favourites. Cyril Braund later became manager of Salford and later of the first Cardiff club.

The first of many Colonials to join the club was Mitchell Bolewski, a full back from Queensland who was 20 when he toured with the Australians in 1908-09. He played full back in the first test between Australia and the Northern Union.

LEIGH LADS ARE HERE

LEIGH come to Watersheddings today in a match which is bound to arouse a lot of local interest because of the Hilton Park club's connections in this area.

It is a pity the match will be robbed of four men who are playing for Great Britain against France at Hull — backs Des Drummond and John Woods (Leigh) and forwards Terry Flanagan and Andy Goodway (Oldham).

Nevertheless, the match is important for both clubs and there is bound to be a lot of rivalry as our former assistant boss Peter Smethurst is returning to Watersheddings for the first time since leaving at the turn of the year.

Peter's return as Leigh boss will give added spice to the occasion, while there is always the possibility that Paddy Kirwan will be turning out for Leigh against his Oldham mates in general and against his pal Ray Ashton in particular.

There could not be a finer tit-bit for this match than to see Ashton and Kirwan in opposition. They are both fine players and they are the best of pals. Both will be out to do their best and the fans should be in for a real treat.

One or two arguments could be revived, too, about the different styles and qualities of the two players.

To provide even more local interest it is likely that former Saddleworth lads Gary Ainsworth and John Henderson will be also turning out in Leigh colours.

With stand-off Woods and winger Drummond on Test duty, Steve Donlan will probably be switched from centre to half-back and that could mean a call-up for both Henderson and winger Phil Fox who, incidentally, also had a spell here in trial two or three years ago!

Leigh suffered a blow last Sunday against Carlisle when hooker Ray Tabern broke his wrist, so it looks odds-on that Ainsworth will be in the middle of the front-row.

Leigh have had a pacy back division for several seasons and although few have the speed and class of Woods and Drummond, Smethurst is not short of pace with Donlan at No. 6, Fox on one wing, Henderson and Graham Worgan in the centre and New Zealander Mark Bourneville on the other flank.

There have been several changes in the Leigh pack in recent weeks with Tommy Martyn having been injured at Hull, Eric Chisnall having fallen into dispute, and Geoff Clarkson having retired.

Derek Pyke and Alf Wilkinson are the probable props with Eddie Hunter and Roy Howarth likely to team up in the second-row and Ian Potter packing down at No. 13.

At Leigh in early December we lost 13-12 in the first round of the John Player Trophy before a crowd of nearly 6,000.

Leigh will be keen to add to that success today while Oldham will be anxious to gain their revenge and get back to winning ways in their First Division campaign.

There has been a major change behind the scenes in the Hilton Park club in the past fortnight with chairman Brian Bowman having resigned. The new chairman at Leigh is Mr. Basil Lowe.

BRIAN BATTY Daily Mail

Rugby League in this country certainly has its problems — like so many other sports — but it comes as a shock to hear further evidence that the game in Sydney is in trouble.

The recent record breaking tour by the Kangaroos has now been overshadowed by the financial problems of clubs as Ian Heads, boss of the big selling Rugby League Week, outlines to me in his latest letter.

He says: 'Ironically the game here is in real trouble . . . just at a time when the Test Team has produced performances like that!

'There is a real chance that one, or even two clubs may drop out of the competition next year — and just about every club in the League is in financial trouble, owing to factors in the recession.

'Newton look just about "gone" . . . needing to sell properties they own and maybe even the Leagues club to pay their bills for 1982.

'The plan is for them to make a partial amalgamation with Campbelltown in 1983 but this is looking shaky at the moment. Most of their top players have left and their future looks bleak.

'Cronulla are in dire straits. As I write, it is touch and go whether they will field a side in 1983.

'The Leagues club has withdrawn all funds to the football club and, as a result, has told players it can only pay them half their contract money for the season.

'The chances are that some of the top players will leave . . . and there is a genuine prospect that Cronulla will drop out.

'Then there is Balmain, Canterbury and Wests all in financial trouble. It is not a happy picture but the inevitable result I suppose, of clubs paying too much money to players for too many years.

'The wealthy clubs have bought up all the good players and the competition is taking on a decidedly lop-sided look. I cannot remember it ever being in worse shape.'

So behind all the glamour of the big Leagues clubs which tend to dwarf the set ups in this country there is more gloom and doom than one would have imagined.

It is possible, I understand, that the New South Wales League may decide to prop up a couple of the worst hit Sydney clubs but few would have believed this crisis existed as the Kangaroos ran riot here a few months ago.

Rugby League followers in the North West recently had the opportunity to see their game compared to Union at club level in a BBC documentary-type programme.

It is sad to report that League, at least for my money, came off second best with the programme slanted in favour of Union.

My conclusion was that we saw the best of Union and most of the worst aspects of League.

Sale and St. Helens were the respective club chosen for the programme entitled 'Love or Money' which was a giveaway of what was to follow.

The emphasis was placed on the money aspect to a degree where the League men appeared more like mercenaries who never gain a moment's pleasure from their sport.

In contrast the Union boys came out of it with a fresh, rosy cheeked complexion even down to the fact that they pay to play, line up to applaud their opponents off the field after the game.

No mention of the generous expenses with which so many top Union clubs attract the talent from lesser rivals and the perks that can be collected.

There was just the briefest of references to the "boot money" scandal. It would have been interesting to have heard Steve Smith's views on the subject.

The repeated scenes of after-the-match socialising at the Union club were genuine enough but not a glimpse of what goes on at St. Helens after a game when players and wives and officials get together.

We were left with the impression that the League players were too busy working out how much they had won to share a beer or a handshake with their rivals which is, of course, far from the truth.

Even the edited match scenes seemed so unbalanced with the accent on the crunching close ups of the St. Helens encounter with Fulham in the John Player Trophy.

Saints are one of the finest attacking sides in the game on their day and yet you had to search in vain for a move worthy of the name in this programme.

Sale on the other hand, a fine club side with many useful players, particularly in the backs, were shown in a far better light.

We had a lot of silly, pointless arguing at the end as to which code would come out on top if they were matched together. In my view this was one clash that Union won on points.

FLASHBACK by Tom Webb

How many of our supporters remember the corresponding day 5, 10, 15 years ago?

FIVE YEARS AGO

Oldham had no match. England beat France at Toulouse 15-13. St. Helens beat Bramley 71-7, ten players sharing the scoring. As Widnes had no game this win took the Saints to the top of the table with 36 points from 22 games while Widnes and Bradford who had played 21 games had 34 and 33 points respectively.

Leigh Barrow, Rochdale Hornets and Huddersfield were the top four in the second division and all subsequently gained promotion. Oldham were sixth, a position they held when the season ended, just a couple of match points behind the fourth club.
