Well, there is only one thing to talk about this week isn't there?

After the unenviable job of having to let Matt go focus obviously turned to finding a replacement.

What do we need?

We need someone with a proven track record ✓

We need someone who can make an immediate impact ✓

We need someone who will command respect from everybody ✓

We need someone who can motivate ✓

We need someone who will make a difference ✓

Those are just the starting points.

What we have done is got ourselves the most successful coach in Super League history in Brian McDermott.

A man who has morals, principles and a reputation for being a hard task master, but whose track record is beyond question.

In addition to that we have managed to bring to the club a man who loves a challenge.

A CHAT WITH THE CHAIRMAN

CHRIS HAMILTON

He, like me, thrives on doing things when those around you doubt you -- and I have no doubt whatsoever he can give us a chance of staying in this division.

It says a lot about him that he has taken on this role until the end of the season. I know there would be plenty of others in his position who would have gone in the opposite direction.

The severity of the challenge ahead was, in a bizarre way, one of the things that, as I drove along the M62 to meet him, I knew would be a key factor.

I had more than an inkling it would be the kind of thing that might just be on our side, which sounds quite bizarre really.

As I drove away from the meeting, quite a while later, I couldn't quite believe what I had achieved! It was a bit surreal!

Nobody, including Brian, is under any illusion about the challenge that lies ahead but I know for sure he will meet it head on.

From the players' point of view they need to embrace the opportunity that is in front of them right now. The first requirement for B Mc is 100 per cent dedication both at training and away from the club.

This is a fantastic opportunity for everybody involved at the club so let's enjoy it and see where it takes us.

Today of course is the first stop on that journey and while not expecting miracles after such a short time, I fully expect to see a different team out there as we take on a Bulls side which has had a good start to the campaign.

Of course, Brian played the whole of his career at Bradford . . . no, surely not!

As ever, get behind the lads today.

Enjoy the game.

SHEZ HAS HIS SAY...

OUR ASSISTANT COACH BRENDAN SHERIDAN GIVES HIS THOUGHTS FROM THE TRAINING GROUND AT A TIME OF GREAT CHANGE AND BIG CHALLENGES.

Well, that was the week that was . . . first Matt going and then, seven days later, Brian coming in as coaching consultant.

Let me say at the outset, what an amazing opportunity and progression it is for me personally to be in a position in which I can pick the coaching brain of a man like Brian McDermott.

His appointment will have raised a few headlines and turned a few heads, but we have a big challenge ahead of us and I am really looking forward to working alongside such a legend of our great sport of rugby league.

Having said that, I owe a massive debt of gratitude to Chris and to Matt for bringing me to the club in the first place. I was sorry to see Matt go. He's a top coach and a top guy and I've learned a lot from him.

Things just didn't work out for us for a variety of reasons. We all know we are in a results-driven business and sometimes tough decisions have to be made.

But we're looking to the future now and, in particular, to the ten league games we have left and the points we need to pick up to stay in the Championship.

From the point of view of myself, the backroom staff and the players it will be all about buying into Brian's experience, his coaching philosophies and his ideas.

He is known all over the rugby league world for his honesty and his integrity and he's the sort of person who will enable us to quickly get over recent upheavals and create some stability within the club.

When I was taking training before Brian's arrival, our aim was to lighten things up a bit and to put a few smiles on a few faces and to remove some of the pressures that have been hindering our performances in recent weeks.

Now Brian is here I believe he'll give us a ten to 15 per cent improvement before we even do anything, but that doesn't alter the fact that we have a lot of work to do on and off the field if we are to give ourselves a chance of achieving our goal.

It all starts NOW, so let's all buy into this fresh start and see where it takes us,

Enjoy the game,
Shez

YOUR CAPTAIN CALLING

Gareth Owen on the ball

I want to start off with my take on Disco leaving and say that the termination of his contract was down to the players. It was nothing to do with anyone else, only us.

We have apologised to him because we didn't meet the standards he set and we have performed nowhere near where we want to be.

That's not down to the coaches, but to individual poor performances and the way we have made far too many errors.

We made 16 mistakes last time out and not many teams will ever win when making so many errors.

Moving on, all we can do as players is to get on with the job and do everything we can to prepare well for the Bradford game in a bid to beat them and to change our season around.

By bringing in Brian McDermott as coaching consultant, Chris has done the absolute best he could to find the man we need to turn our fortunes round. Brian's stats and his career record speak for themselves.

As captain, I'm really looking forward to the changes he will bring to the club as a whole and I can't wait to get ripped in for him.

With ten games left, we need to perform sooner rather than later. Let's do it, starting with this game against the Bulls.

Gareth

“ By bringing in Brian, Chris has done his absolute best to find the man we need. ”

Player Focus

Matthew Fletcher

One of six Oldhamers in our current squad, and a product of the Waterhead club, Matty Fletcher is currently on a two-year deal covering 2020 and 2021.

Aged 21, he lives on the family farm on the hills above Lees and he signed for his home-town club after returning from a spell in Australia which he thoroughly enjoyed.

Big and strong, most of his time here has been Covid hit, but he played in all six games in 2020 and eight out of 13 so far this season, making 14 in total, comprising two starts and a dozen off the bench.

Between Waterhead and Australia, he was in the Bradford Bulls Academy -- a young forward with a bright future ahead of him.

Q: What's your day job?

A: I started my own support and community care company, called My Ability, in November, 2020. I work throughout Greater Manchester caring for children and young adults with autism or learning disabilities. I love it and I find it amazing to make as many positive changes to their lives, as they make to mine.

Q: What was the worst thing you did at school?

A: On a school trip to France, a few of us went to a local market where we found dead chickens, each with a head and feathers still in place. One of our group suggested we should buy one and hide it in our teacher's hotel room. We were lucky we didn't have the cane or belt any more, but if you could go to prison for your thoughts, the lad concerned would have served a few life sentences!

Q: If you won the lottery what would you buy first?

A: Waterhead ARLFC, and I'd build a stadium for them.

Q: Which sports star do you most admire, and why?

A: Victor Radley, young Aussie rugby league player. I love the way he plays. Other than rugby league, it would be Matty Holland, a triathlon runner from Oldham. He's my idol.

Q: How would your team mates describe you ?

A: Strange.

Q: What's your biggest achievement in rugby league?

A: I'm still young, so I don't have many achievements yet, but I was proud to join such a highly-regarded club as North Devils in Australia. When I first arrived and saw the quality of the players they had developed through their systems, I felt I had no place to be there.

Q: And your biggest disappointment?

A: Leaving Australia to come home. I loved everything out there and it made me the best version of me.

Q and A continues on page 8

CROSS-DRESSING IN AUSTRALIA WITH MY BEST MATES TOM, OWEN, ZANE.

ME AND MY PARTNER ELLA. WE TRAINED A CRAB TO TAKE THIS PICTURE AT SURFER'S PARADISE, QUEENSLAND !

Q: Away from rugby and your day job, what do you do most ?

A: During lockdown I started playing golf. Other than that, I'm a self-proclaimed coffee connoisseur. I love going round different coffee shops.

Q: What's the best thing about being in the Oldham squad?

A: The fans are great, passionate and loyal, and they made me very welcome when I first signed.

Q: What would be your dream role in life?

A: Owning a state-of-the-art centre for disadvantaged/disabled children or young adults, who could use facilities and equipment for free.

FLETCHER IN POSSESSION

CHRIS GETS HIS 'FORMIDABLE' REPUTATION WE AIM TO PULL OFF THE G

BY ROGER HALSTEAD

The guy who knew Brian McDermott in the Royal Marines said it all, didn't he ?

Steve Bergg -- remember him Brian? -- messaged on Facebook:

"I know Brian from my days in the Marines. He's a formidable warrior and a leader of men.

"Any team would be lucky to have him. They don't come any better for courage, loyalty or work ethic. The team will love him."

Is there anything else to say about the qualities of the 51-year-old, who has been winning trophies as player and coach since he was a young prop at Bradford in the naughty nineties?

Well, yes, there is; he's also well known for calling it as it is; for speaking his mind; for being unafraid to question the Establishment or to tackle head-on the major issues of the day.

I don't claim to know our newly-appointed coaching consultant personally, but I have watched him and listened to him on TV for many years and he comes across as the sort of man you would want by your side in the trenches.

It's easy to see why there is so much mutual respect between Big Mac and Chris Hamilton; they're two of a kind with so many similar characteristics.

Chris, like any good leader, has never been afraid to make the tough decisions if he felt it was the right thing to do for the club and, as he has said publicly more than once, it was particularly tough to part company with Matt Diskin, who had worked hard during his time at the club, most of it during Covid.

One of these days we'll look at Chris's life story to figure out the people and events that have shaped him into the man he is today.

For now, though, it's all about Brian McDermott, whose absolutely phenomenal record as a rugby league winner speaks for itself. He was born in Wakefield and cut his "puppy teeth" in league with Eastmoor ARLFC.

I am confident that he would pick out his five years in the Marines as a hugely significant period in his formative years --- that plus his ten years at Bradford at a time when that club was synonymous with the disciplines and core principles that Big Mac holds dear to this day.

Didn't Scott Naylor have similar traits? Of course he did; no surprise then that both Scott and Brian have appealed to the Roughyeds chairman, who can himself be fairly described as "his own man."

BLE WARRIOR' AS GREAT ESCAPE

Anyway, back to Brian and that staggering record of success.

As a player at Bradford, he won three Super League titles; three League Leaders' Shields; two Challenge Cups; and one World Club Championship.

As a coach at Leeds, it was four Super League titles; one League Leaders' Shield; two Challenge Cups; and the World Club Championship.

In 2015, he won the historic treble for Leeds -- Challenge Cup, League Leaders' Shield and a Grand Final 22-20 win against Wigan at Old Trafford.

On top of all that, he's played for England and Great Britain and coached the USA.

Welcome to Oldham, Brian !

THOSE WERE THE DAYS

Q: When did you play for Oldham and in what position?

A: From 1999 to 2005, scrum-half or hooker, but mainly at hooker.

Q: What was your most memorable game, and why?

A: My very first game for Oldham. Mick Coates was coach. He invited me to training on a Monday night and by the following Sunday I was on the bench against Hull KR. It was very surreal to be in the same changing room as forwards like Cleggy and Leo.

Q: Which sportsman do you most admire, and why?

A: Swiss tennis ace Roger Federer. His dedication and composure under pressure have enabled him to be at the top of the tennis tree for years.

Q: What would you say is your biggest professional achievement?

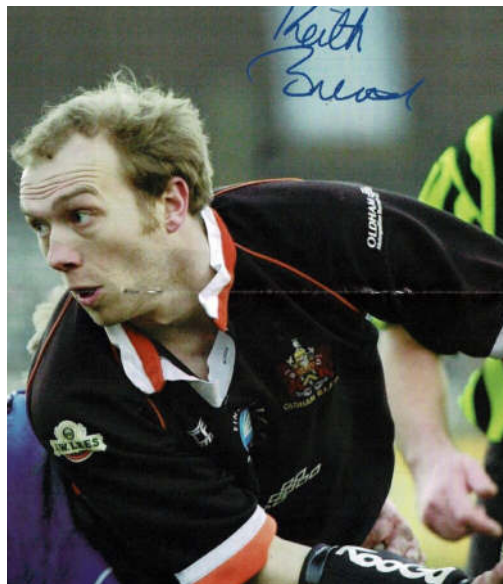

A: I have two of equal merit, signing for Oldham as a professional and getting to the Grand Final against Widnes in 2001.

Q: And your biggest disappointment?

A: Losing the Grand Final in the way we did. We'd played really well up to that game, but on the big day we didn't perform to our potential. To make matters worse, I had a shocker.

Q: How would your Oldham team mates have described you?

A: Hard-working, honest and a good team player.

MY SON KEEGAN AND ME AFTER PLAYING IN THE SAME GAME.
I COULDN'T WALK FOR A WEEK AFTERWARDS !

As joint coaches of Waterhead's open-age and under-18s squads, Keith Brennan and Jon Perks have a special bond with our very own Matthew Fletcher, whom they coached at youth level before he joined Bradford Bulls' Academy and ultimately signed for Roughyeds following a spell in Australia.

Waterhead under-13s sponsor Fletcher, who still has a very close liaison with the Peach Road club. It is appropriate, therefore, that Fletcher's Player Focus and Brennan's Q and A as a past player in the 'Those Were The Days' feature should appear in the same issue of 'Roughyed Review'.

Outside rugby, Brennan runs his own joinery business, Moorside Joinery, but he is still heavily involved in community rugby league with Waterhead, while keenly following the progress of the six local lads, currently playing with their home-town team, as he did, namely Gareth Owen, Danny Bridge, Phil Joy, James Barran, Joe Hartley and Matty Fletcher.

Q: What did you like most about being in the Oldham squad?

A: The belief we had as a group and the craic we all had. It was constant.

Q: What prompted your decision to leave?

A: It was a decision based on the length of time it was taking me to recover after a game. It led to niggling injuries and I felt I was neither playing nor training to my own standards.

Q: What's your current day job?

A: I'm a joiner running my own firm, Moorside Joinery. My son Keegan works with me.

Q: What would be your dream role in life?

A: I would be in charge of time. There never seems to be enough of it; you can't buy it; and you can't get it back once its gone.

BRADFORD BULLS

We welcome Bradford Bulls to Bower Fold today for what will be the only competitive fixture between our two clubs in 2021. The formula for the current season determines that each club will play four teams only once and today's game falls into that category.

The Bulls began the current campaign with an away tie at Sheffield Eagles. It wasn't to be a happy return to league action for coach John Kear's side as they fell to a thumping 50-18 loss having been nilled in the first half. Home wins against Halifax Panthers and landlords Dewsbury Rams came in rounds two and three, putting the Bulls back on track. A series of steady victories followed in the first half of the season with only an away defeat to Featherstone Rovers and a recent reversal at home to Widnes Vikings blotting the copy book.

As things stand before today's action, the Bulls sit third in the Championship table with eight wins from eleven completed games. High flying Featherstone and Toulouse — both with 100% win rates — are above them in the top two places. Should any of the two frontrunners falter in the second-half of the season, the Bulls are ideally situated to take full advantage.

The last time Oldham and Bradford played each other was back at the beginning of March 2020. Newly promoted Oldham hosted today's visitors here in Stalybridge. Danny Bridge scored two tries for the Roughyeds but it wasn't enough to prevent Bradford from claiming a 26-12 victory. Tries from Sam Hallas, Steve Crossley, Brandon Pickersgill and Joe Carter sealed the win for the visitors.

History shows that in the past 30 years, Oldham wins against Bradford have been few and far between. The Roughyeds have recorded only two victories in that time. The first was way back in 1994 when two tries apiece from Darren Abram and Wally Gibson helped Oldham to a 32-12 home victory in the old Division 1.

Oldham fans will more easily recall the second Oldham win since it happened only four years ago in April 2017. Oldham snatched the two points in the closing stages of the game thanks to a break from Tuoyo Egodo and meandering run from try scoring Kieran Gill.

Despite the early season heroics of Messrs Egodo and Gill, both Oldham and Bradford were relegated at the end of the 2017 season. The two sides would go on to meet each other at Odsal Stadium for a promotion play-off semi-final in September of 2018. A depleted Oldham team were soundly beaten 47-0 as the Bulls began their push for a return to Championship football. Oldham followed a similar route in 2019.

Today's encounter should, on paper, be a simple matter of an in-form Bradford picking up away points against an Oldham team without a win in several weeks. The Bulls will be counting on classy backs such as Rhys Evans, Jordan Lilley and Brandon Pickersgill to operate behind stalwart forwards in the form of Steve Crossley, Brad England and George Flanagan.

The unknown factor in the equation today is the introduction of a certain Brian McDermott. The former Bulls player has just arrived as a coaching consultant in the Oldham camp but having played over 250 games for the Odsal side between 1994 and 2003, he'll need no introduction to the Bradford faithful.

Upon finishing his playing career, McDermott moved on to coaching, most famously with Leeds Rhinos where he led his charges to Super League, Challenge Cup and World Club Challenge success.

The McDermott factor could energise Oldham and return some much needed confidence to captain Gareth Owen and his players. Bradford will be keen to perform in front of both their away supporters and their former star man. We have all the ingredients of a fascinating afternoon's entertainment.

Three To Watch

BRANDON PICKERSGILL

The Bradford-born full-back made his professional debut against Toulouse in 2017, having graduated from the club's Academy and went on to make four senior appearances that season.

The 22-year-old enjoyed a fruitful 2018 under John Kear as he adopted the full-back position alongside Gregg McNally, whom he would replace in 2019.

The former Stanningley amateur received the number 1 jersey worn by the likes of Brett Kearney and Michael Withers over previous years and rewarded Kear's faith with nine tries in 21 appearances last year.

The full-back, who can also feature in the halves, has just past his 50th career appearance.

GEORGE FLANAGAN

A fan favourite, Bradford born hooker Flanagan joined the club from Hunslet RLFC in February of 2018.

Flanagan was a key member of John Kear's squad during the 2018 and 2019 season, making a combined total of 40 appearances and scoring 20 tries, one of those against Leon Pryce's Workington Town in the League One play-off final.

George actually came through the club's academy system but never made a senior appearance, until signing back in 2018.

The popular hooker signed a new one year deal to stay at the club until the end of the 2021 season.

STEVE CROSSLEY

Bradford born prop Crossley rejoined the club from Toronto Wolfpack in October 2017 and was made club captain for the 2018 season.

He was an ever present figure in the Bradford Bulls team during both seasons, making a combined appearance total of 55 games, scoring 12 tries.

Crossley signed a one year extension to his contract taking his stay at the Bulls up-to 2021.

COVID ISSUES PUT OUR BIG EVENT IN THE BALANCE

Due to nervousness in the Southern Hemisphere, this year's Rugby League World Cup is currently in the balance and clouded with uncertainty due to the ongoing Covid-19 pandemic.

Reigning champions Australia, and also New Zealand, have yet to commit to the tournament and NRL clubs have concerns about releasing their players, who would have to quarantine for two weeks when they get home.

World Cup organisers have delayed a decision and say progress has been made.

Furthermore, they remain optimistic after the latest round of negotiations in the Southern Hemisphere.

The major difference between our World Cup, scheduled to start here in the UK in the autumn with England facing Samoa at Newcastle's St James' Park on October 23, and the current European football tournament is the very obvious one that countries from the other side of the globe will be coming here for our big event, as opposed to European travel only in football's big bash.

The organisers of RLWC2021 have released the following statement:

"Our priority focus to deliver the Rugby League World Cup this year remains as planned and constructive progress has been made.

"We are realistic about the complex challenges we are facing in these unprecedented times, including international travel arrangements and the quarantining of athletes and staff from the Southern Hemisphere.

"In the interests of delivering clarity and certainty to everyone involved in staging the tournament, a final decision will be made as soon as possible.

"We have made it clear, however, that our decision-making will not be dictated by deadlines if further consideration is required."

The option if a postponement is confirmed is to play the tournament in a year's time, but that would create several logistical problems, not least a clash with football's World Cup -- clearly something to be avoided if at all possible.

Back to current plans and more than 400 players and officials are due to arrive from Down Under with men's, women's and wheelchair World Cup competitions all scheduled to take place at the same time.

NRL clubs are expected to supply most of the players for eight of the 16 nations competing in the men's tournament.

ENGLAND SCHEDULE

England are grouped with Samoa, France and Greece and their group games are scheduled like this:

- v Samoa at St James' Park, Newcastle, Saturday, October 23 (2.30pm).
- v France at the University of Bolton Stadium, Horwich, Saturday, October 30 (5pm).
- v Greece at Bramall Lane, Sheffield, Saturday, November 6 (2.30pm).

Officials have been holding talks with the Australian Rugby League Players' Association and have offered to lay on charter flights to reduce the risks associated with long-distance travel.

Among those pressing for a decision to be made quickly is the St Helens head coach Kristian Woolf, who also coaches Tonga, fancied by many, as are Samoa, to have the best chance of smashing the monopoly of the so-called big three.

He said:

"On this side of the world there's a positivity about the tournament going ahead, but on the other side there is definitely a lot more hesitancy.

"We need someone to come out and make a decision so we can either prepare for it, which is what we're all trying to do at the moment, or move on.

"My personal preference, from a Tongan point of view, is that it goes ahead."

Liam's big date with his former club

PROP Liam Kirk, a new signing for this season, has played in ten of 13 games in cup and league so far, but none have been as special to him as this week's clash with Bradford Bulls.

Born and bred in that neck of the woods, 'Kirkie' signed for Roughyeds in October last year after being a Bull since he was 16 and playing in 82 senior games for the club.

He signed for Bradford on scholarship forms from Drighlington ARLFC and worked his way conscientiously through the Bulls' youth set-up, winning an under-19s player-of-the-year award when still only 17.

The following year he carried off a monthly award as the club's outstanding player during March, 2015.

All but six of his 82 senior games with the Bulls were played in the Championship season of 2017, the League One campaign of 2018 and the Championship season of 2019 when he figured in 31, 22 and 23 games respectively.

On his move to Oldham, he said: "I've been at Bradford for a few years and I'm looking for a new challenge. I want something different in my life.

"At the same time I'm only 23. I've got years in the game ahead of me, so I'm hoping to achieve something as well. We want to be challenging for things. I think Oldham is the right place for me to be."

It's been a bumpy ride for all the players at Oldham so far, but we're starting again now with ten games left and Kirkie would like nothing better than to have a blinder against his former team mates.

WILKY HOPING TO BE BACK BEFORE END OF SEASON

Hooker Matty Wilkinson, who broke a leg in pre-season training, is making good progress and is now back with the rest of the squad on training nights, doing his rehabilitation.

He was in the dug-out at the Dewsbury Rams game when he revealed that, if everything continues to go smoothly, he might be ready to play again before the end of this season.

"It's all going fine, and I'm very upbeat about it," said the unlucky hooker.

"I have an appointment with the specialist again tomorrow, and I'm very confident that he'll confirm that I am ahead of schedule.

"I'm fancying a couple of games at the end of the season -- that's my aim -- but I won't be taking any chances if the medical people advise against it. I don't want a setback after being out all this time."

At the age of 25 -- just --- and not having played the game he loves for more than 15 months, Matty is itching to get back on the pitch.

If he delays his comeback until 2022, he will have been out for the best part of two years, and with a few seasons ahead of him he will be keen to make up for lost time.
